Type of activity:

Sport for Sustainable Development

Short description:

UFOLEP, the sports federation of the Education League, aims to train sports citizens to be more aware of their responsibilities society, and it is also concerned about the consequences of their activities for current and future generations. UFOLEP considers the ecological and social transition as an essential step in the establishment of sports practices that are respectful to both humans and biodiversity. Its action plan aims to apply principles of biodiversity in an integrated and transversal way to UFOLEP's activities and its institutional and private partnerships. Its areas of work are: developing accessibility to sport for all, educating citizens on today's issues, sustaining activities over the long term, promoting the local and/or sustainable economy, protecting and respecting the environment. UFOLEP is a signatory of the Sports Charter for Sustainable Development, drawn up by the CNOSF with reference to the French Sports Agenda 21 in favour of sustainable development. It is also a signatory of the National Strategy for the Sustainable Development of Sport, the National Strategy for Biodiversity and the charter of 15 eco-responsible commitments from the Ministry of Sports.
