Type of activity:

Sports leadership training for young people

Short description:

As a sport for development charity, Youth Sport Trust International seeks to address one or more of the Sustainable Development Goals in all the work that it undertakes. As well as the Beckwith International Leadership Development (BILD) programme described below, it has been contracted by the British Council to deliver training to develop leadership and life skills in young people across the Gulf region. It has also undertaken training to promote good health and well-being (SDG3), support gender equality (SDG5) and reduce inequalities (SDG10).

BILD is a unique initiative which enables young people in the developing world to achieve their full potential through sports leadership training. The programme works alongside government ministries and is established in national organisations to ensure as many children as possible are impacted by our work, and that young people can still benefit from YSTI's teaching after the programme has ended.
