Type of activity:

Empowering young people through sports

Short description:

FANT's 10 sports associations in Sierra Leone ensure that 10,000 children and young people are activated every day through sports. The sports associations and the sport are in general used as tools to teach children and young people how to enter into communities across social status, gender, age, ethnicity, religion etc. The strong culture of sports associations known especially in Denmark is used in this programme to bring up children to value voluntarism, unity and organisation. Children and young people live hard lives in Sierra Leone with many chores and worries. The associations create a free space for the kids with room for joy and games, possibility to create friendships and freedom to dream of a better future.
