Sport for social change

Short description:

The Open Fun Football Schools is an all-inclusive activity, meaning that everyone can participate regardless of talent, gender, ethnic or social background, religious or political affiliations. The strength of the Open Fun Football School programme is its ability to generate relations between people and institutions. The programme is inspired by the Danish sports model that, among other things, is characterised by volunteerism, parent cooperation, association culture and the basic principle of sport-for-all. The program is NOT about scouting or developing talented football players; it is a hub. The programme is about using a special specific child-centered and community-based Open Fun Football Schools approach as a tool to stimulate social change.
