Short description:

The programme aims to use sport to strengthen the competences of children & young people to help them coexist peacefully in a democratic society, and to contribute to the social (re)integration of internally displaced groups. The priority areas are regions affected by conflict, violence and displacement. In the context of the ongoing peace process, the integration of formerly active participants in Colombia's armed conflict also plays an important role. Collectively, the partners have developed a method called 'Deporte con Principios' ('sport with principles'). It uses sport to teach children & young people values like respect & team spirit, and to give them social competences. The method draws on concepts of football for peace that already exist in Colombia, as well as international S4D approaches, modern sports teaching methods and findings from the field of youth psychology. Through the three stages of training during a several-week course for coaches, teachers and social workers, the programme underpins positive behavioural changes among the children & young adults.
